

GRANT TAXPAYERS TO CONTEST PAYMENT OF $55,000 BONDS

Claim Issue Was Floated
Without Referendum
Vote

HIRE AN ATTORNEY

Claiming that the $55,000 bond issue floated recently by Grant Township high school district No. 124, is illegal because issued without a referendum vote, and that it exceeds the constitutional limit of 2 1/2 per cent on taxable property, the Grant Township Taxpayers Association has retained Attorney David T. Smiley, former McHenry county judge, of Woodstock, to represent the taxpayers in contesting payment. Meetings are being held throughout the district, which comprises all of Grant township and two sections of land in Antioch township and also two sections in Lake Villa.

Payments Start in 1940

The contested bonds are dated February 1, 1931, and the payments are to start in 1940, after the original building bonds of $72,000 will have been retired. The first payment on the supplemental issue will be about $5,000, according to Everett Orvis, president of the Central Lake County Taxpayers Association, and the bonds are to run for 10 years. Payments on the original bonds of $72,000 will start next year, Orvis said. Funds from this bond issue were exhausted for building purposes, and the supplemental issue of $55,000 was to cover payments on supplies, the taxpayers say, declaring that the bonds were not authorized by referendum vote of the taxpayers of the district.

In 1931 when the bonds were issued the district had taxable property to the amount of $3,206,000, but revised figures for 1932 just released indicate that values in the district have dropped to $2,687,000.

TECHNOCRACY, MONSTER OR FRIEND?

Clinging with a grim optimism to the principles of established society in the hope that in them lies safety, or reaching for a chance straw carried along by the current, have been the two reactions of the American public in response to present conditions.

"A chance straw" characterizes "Technocracy" for it has been grasped, proclaimed, and widely publicized before being sanely analyzed and examined. With its advocates, it has figured in the headlines of almost every periodical which makes a pretense of relating significant trends of current history. Until this week, Columbia University's fostering of the movement in its research buildings gave a certain dignity to the declarations of the Technocrats, even though Columbia's president denied active association of the college with the group. This week the Technocrats were ejected through the announcement has been made that the "industrial survey" will continue. Columbia evidently regarded the publicity attending the Technocrats as unpleasant.

What is Technocracy? The question has been answered with a dozen varying definitions by its advocates and enemies. Simply, it is a study by a group of engineers of industry and the rate at which man's production has increased from the pre-machine age to the present. Technocracy is not concerned with politics nor government. It has no relation to socialism.

According to the Technocrat, we have perfected mechanical aids and developed so rapidly along industrial lines, that the time is coming—some maintain it is upon us—when there will cease to be employment. The production of 1929, when the world markets were being glutted, can be equalled now by putting 55 per cent of the unemployed back at work, the Technocrat maintains. An opponent to the movement reminds us that there were more gainfully employed per thousand in 1930 than in 1920 or 1900.

But putting aside the arguments of Technocracy's opponents, and surveying the field itself, we find it has not sprung out of the present conditions, that it is not an idea belonging to the 1930's but dates back as far as 1888 when Edward Bellamy in "Looking Backward" suggested some of the fundamentals of technocracy.

The research in itself, being carried on by these men, is not startling. Their figures are not so different from those one finds in a World Almanac. They have offered no startling proposal for setting up a new system to replace the present capitalistic order; in fact they have offered no proposal at all.

Their conclusions alone are startling, and those, because of the wide publicity which has been given to the movement and the sensationalism which has been used in presenting it to the public, have convinced us that if the Technocrat's conclusions become fact, we are in for a tremendous upheaval. This and not the thought of shortening our working lives to the years between 25 and 45—and then working four hours a day—is disturbing.

It is self evident that an industrial survey in itself is harmless and may be of benefit. But to proclaim the conclusions drawn from the research as scientific fact, when they aren't proved, is creating a new realm for science.

Few scholars are willing to give an unrestricted opinion today as to whether the Technocrats' basic ideas are or are not significant. Few are willing to go all the way in accepting their forecasts.

Disinterestedly judging the movement, we would say that the Technocrat has been too excitable. Because 2 and 1½ so nearly make four, they have jumped to the conclusion that it is four. Technocracy as a field of study will yield a mass of data which in the hands of a leader may be a foundation for sane, constructive reforms. Under their present Howard Scott, with his position in the limelight, it will continue to be one of the freaks thriving in the barren soil of this depression.

MAKE TAXATION HURT

One need not be an advocate of the general sales tax to appreciate that it would have one desirable effect: It would make taxation hurt. It would give every citizen, regardless of income, a new understanding of the gigantic cost of the government.

All of us pay taxes. But comparatively few of us pay them directly—and a great many persons who pay indirect tax think they are escaping taxation altogether.

We pay a tax when we cook and eat a meal, turn on the light, attend a movie, buy clothes, go for a ride, or do almost anything else. These taxes may be concealed in the cost of necessities and pleasures, but they are there nevertheless.

No business can pick money from bushes—every cost of operation, whether it be labor, supplies or taxes, must be passed on to the customer.

If more of us felt taxes directly, the chance for really obtaining economical and efficient government would be tremendously improved.

If the sales tax comes, government extravagance and expansion will have again added to the cost of the things we buy—and when it hurts all the people, they may then demand a lower cost of government.

Before considering a sales tax, however, or any other new and increased taxation, public officials would do well to remember that in seeking office at recent state and national elections, they, one and all, stressed the need for economy in public affairs, reduced taxation and, in a number of instances, promised a 25 per cent cut in the cost of government.

The people will be slow to consent to new and added taxes and it will be an ill-advised program that attempts to force such burdens on them before pre-election promises for reduced cost of government have been kept.

Banks Put Money to Work

WELL informed depositors know that a bank does not hold their money in its vaults and pay back the same dollars they deposited.

No bank could do this and be of any real use to its community. Dollars are not put in the bank to loaf or sleep, but to work. When they finish one job the bank sends them out on another.

The bank lends money to manufacturers for raw materials; to merchants to buy goods; to farmers to carry crops to market; to wage-earners to build homes, and so on.

So when you deposit money in the bank you do not store it selfishly away. You add it temporarily to the active working fund used to make business better, and living conditions happier and more prosperous for everyone in your community.

Former Wilmot Man, Now Oregon Editor, Recalls Early Days Of Wilmot School

Richard B. Swenson, former resident and editor of Wilmot, whose father was a school director at the time the Wilmot Building was under construction and a director himself later, upon learning of the Wilmot fire which destroyed the school building, writes the following history of the Wilmot school.

Mr. Swenson is now a resident of Monmouth, Oregon, and editor of the Monmouth Herald. He was formerly editor of the Agitator, Wilmot's only paper.

Monmouth, Oregon, Jan. 16. I note the burning of the Wilmot school building and reference to plans made for substituting for it through a new district. In connection with the old building and the old district, I think I am better acquainted with the history of this project than any person now living.

Recalls Old Building
My father, John Swenson, was a school director at the time the building was under construction in 1878 and 1879, and with the exception of two years, he or I, held office on the board consecutively until I left for the west in the spring of 1913. The original unit was put up I believe under direction of Chris George, of Kenosha.

I recall the old school building, moved away but still standing. The primary room is at the back of Faulkner's blacksmith shop and the upper grade room is a major portion of the garage on the Faulkner premises. I went to school first in the old building with Miss Ida Carpenter and William Griffith as teachers. My wife, Elizabeth Burton, and I, as six-year olds, started in the new brick building when the doors were first opened for use in the late fall of 1879. Others among the first to use the new building were Guy Stanton Ford, now dean of the graduate school of the University of Minnesota, and George Kroncke, whom I see referred to as "Judge" in Madison.

I was treasurer of the school board when the township high school law was called to our attention. This must have been about 1903. We had been struggling along carrying the burden of a high school on joint district No. 9, Salem and Randall, when the project was broached. Under the law, township lines held and the election was in the usual voting place, Camp Lake. We had some support from Silver Lake and Trevor, but not enough to overcome Salem and the farmer vote and the project lost. Rev. Montague, Salem and Wilmot minister, was quoted as saying he thought it an imposition the proposed high school should be located in Wilmot.

Was Accessible
But Wilmot was readily accessible. It had roads leading out and to town from all directions, on both sides of the river. Number 9 always had a long list of tuition paying students. But more than its accessibility, its citizens had for years previously held up the torch of education at personal sacrifice and had the best rural school in the county. It possessed an educational background with traditions highly important in operating a school. James Cavanaugh, Kenosha lawyer, Sands M. Hart, Racine manufacturer, and William Griffith were among its early teachers. To it had come forward looking citizens seeking knowledge. On the school roll had been such names as Patterson, Kerwin, Dalton, Gallagher, Fleming, McGuire, Haley, Gull, Orris, Brown, Stewart, Welton, Lyons, Wilcox, Stanton, Reynolds, Runkel, Salisbury and others in Kenosha county and another list, almost as long from Burton township in Illinois.

The Wilmot people had a real interest in the cause and when in two years time the legislature passed another law providing that districts need not follow the township lines and the voting place could be named by the initiating district, the county superintendent, Walter Carey, then a board member, and the writer brooked out the proposed district. This was called to the attention of John Kerwin, then county superintendent, and received his ready backing. He looked over the lines of the proposed district and proposed a few changes. The project was put to a vote and carried meeting some opposition in the neighborhood of Bassett, but not enough to affect the result.

In the early days I don't think the people of Wilmot carried on developing their school as a town boosting proposition. Had they been boosters by instinct they could readily have made their town much more influential for nature was kind to them. But the early settlers of the village were of New England and New York origin and they had the educational instinct. I don't know how much of this urge still persists in Wilmot, but it is highly important factor in making a school a success.

Something New

SALMON is one of the most popular fish in the world, and much vast quantities of it are eaten annually that everyone supposed they knew all about it. But a certain food packer has taken the hint from a can of "Fruit for Salad," and now offers a specially selected and prepared "Salmon for Salad." The salmon are skinned and the bones removed and then diced and packed into inside enameled cans, lined with pure parchment paper, to give the contents the greatest possible protection. Only the choicest portions of the best of salmon are used for this popular food product in a new form. The cubes are only slightly cooked together and are easily broken apart. It is most attractive—no waste—and possesses an excellent flavor.

Individual Steaks, Too

Just as special cuts are used for this new "Salmon for Salad," the best possible parts of the fish are used for the new "Individual Salmon Steaks," now being put up by this salmon packer in oval quarter pound cans. For just as there are certain cuts of meat which are particularly suitable and desirable for certain uses, so there are portions of each salmon, according to this packer, that are superior to other parts.

Leyden Wins

Antioch was disastrously defeated by the Leyden five last Friday night 44-26 when they ventured upon the floor of the winning team. The second team was also defeated, but by a smaller margin, Leyden scoring 34 points to Antioch's 28.

Leyden took the lead early in the first quarter of the first-team game and held Antioch to four points in the first half which they collected 26 markers. Antioch started to do things in the second half, but it was too late to overcome the 22 point lead and Leyden won the contest 44-26.

Steingabar, captain and center of the Leyden quintet, was the high scorer of the game, having dropped the ball through the net nine times for eighteen points. Steffenburg led the point producers of the Antioch five with three baskets and three free throws.

In the second-team game Leyden's best basketesters were Amenson, with five baskets, and Williams, with three baskets and two free throws. Steffenburg was the best shooter in this game also, having contributed six baskets and two free throws.

AN EDITORIAL

What is the University of Illinois worth to you?

A recent bulletin of the University shows that the state's highest educational institution is returning to the state and nation, in discoveries and research alone, more than $100,000 annually. As a citizen of the state of Illinois, you directly or indirectly, receive the benefit of much of the University's work.

"It is impossible in most instances to interpret in dollars and cents the value of the University's research contributions," the bulletin says. "However, very little figuring, and less imagination, is needed to demonstrate that many millions of dollars are annually given back to the state in the form of returns on its investment in this institution."

Indeed one friend of the University said recently that the value of these discoveries "probably approximates a hundred million dollars a year—certainly many times the amount the state appropriates for all purposes—teaching, research, and building."

While the bulletin does not attempt to show the value of all University research, it does list contributions of the University to the state in industry and agriculture alone that mean an annual saving of $100,000,000.

"The discovery of Illinium, the only chemical element ever discovered in America; the production of Illium, a new metal which can be substituted for platinum in many instances; the very definite contribution to the treatment of leprosy; the low temperature process for cooking Illinois coal which returns byproducts worth more than the original cost of the fuel; the great series of investigations in the money market, and commercial fields in general; the development of the serum for combating typhoid, poisoning, and others, are stories perhaps already well known," the bulletin explains in apology for much left out of the publication.

It continued: "Our medical and dental staffs have added much to human welfare through their investigations. The chemists have added their contributions, as has the electrical engineering staff, the departments of architecture, entomology, geology, zoology, botany and others; one might safely say that no one department of the University has failed to contribute its full quota to the world's knowledge."

The University of Illinois continues to be not only one of the world's great teaching institutions, but one of the greatest investments the state of Illinois has ever made.

Control of the University

The control of the University of Illinois is entrusted to the Board of Trustees, elected by its owners—the citizens of the state. The Board consists of two ex-officio and nine elected members.

The present trustees charged with the control of the State's highest educational institution are: Gov. Louis L. Emmerson and Francis G. Blair, superintendent of public instruction, ex-officio members; George A. Barr, Joliet; Mrs. Laura B. Evans, Taylorville; Mrs. Helen M. Grigsby, Pittsfield; Dr. William L. Noble, Chicago; James W. Armstrong, Rock Island; Merle J. Trees, Chicago; Edward E. Barrett, Chicago, and Walter W. Williams, Benton.

Mr. Barr is president of the Board. Other officers include: Frank M. Gordon, Chicago, treasurer; Lloyd Morey, Urbana, comptroller; and Harrison E. Cunningham, Urbana, secretary.

Fish Fished Fisherman

A sixteen-year-old lad, of Tangalle, Ceylon, while fishing at the mouth of a river was carried more than 50 yards out to sea by a big fish. Then he relinquished his rod and swam back to safety. Two fishermen went out in a boat and picked up the rod. A big fish then sprang to the surface, broke the line and escaped.

Angora Wool Softest

The hairs of the angora rabbit are from 6 to 10 inches long and are said to furnish the softest wool in the world. An adult rabbit may be sheared three or four times a year and yields about three ounces of wool at a clipping, which is worth about ten times as much as equal quantity of sheep's wool.

to the World's Fair Grounds in double deck coaches. They visited the Administration Building first and heard a lecture on the Fair, and then visited the different buildings and finally Fort Dearborn where the early history of the fort and the story of Fort Dearborn Massacre was explained.

Leaving the grounds, a thirty minute stop was made at the Shedd Aquarium.

The schools took advantage of the excursions offered by the North Shore railroad company which included transportation from Libertyville to Chicago, and transportation from the Chicago station to the points to be visited at the World's Fair.

Grade school children who accompanied the excursion were limited to the seventh and eighth grades, but a half holiday was declared for the other grades so as to allow all the teachers to go. Thirty from the Grade School and forty-five from the High School made up the party.

Admission to the fair is free to students every Wednesday afternoon and for this reason a number of schools have been making the trip. The group left Libertyville at twelve o'clock and arrived back at 5:30 o'clock that evening. Students from Fox Lake and Zurich High Schools also made the excursion.

POULTRY-RAISERS—Want more eggs?

✓ THIS NEW WATER WARMER HELPS GET MAXIMUM EGG PRODUCTION

only $2.50 complete

Keeping the poultry house lighted in the early morning and evening during winter months gives hens a long, active day. They eat more feed, drink more water—and lay more eggs.

But hens can't drink frozen water. The benefits of night lighting are lost unless a means of warming their drinking water is provided. We recommend this electric warmer just introduced by the General Electric Company. It is particularly inexpensive and trouble-free. Note these features:

1. It is made of flexible rubber so it can be used in almost any pan without fitting or clamping.
2. A long 10-foot rubber cord plugs it into any electric outlet.
3. It keeps water free of ice crust in containers up to 12-quart capacity.

4. It will not burn out even if the water runs low.
5. It has been carefully tested in the Public Service Company's testing laboratory. Quality is guaranteed.
6. It costs only $2.50 complete, and uses very little current.

FOR A FREE DEMONSTRATION of this electric water warmer, write or phone your nearest Public Service office. One of our representatives familiar with poultry raising problems will call on you and show you how this warmer works. You won't be putting yourself under any obligation. HintsPatriotic And Valentine Themes Offer
Suggestions For February PartiesRed, White and Blue and Hearts Are Appropriate This Month

February is a month of decorative parties—a month which offers the hostess unlimited opportunities for adding frills to her entertaining. The celebration of Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays and Valentine's Day during the month, are the source of many attractive suggestions for favors and table decorations.

The patriotic motif is the most frequently used because it is appropriate from the early part of the month until the end. The color theme of red, white and blue which accompanies this theme, may be carried into the menu, the favors, the prizes and the table.

Small flags attached to the place cards, hatchets, suggesting the cherry tree story, and cherries themselves add to the gaiety of a February party. Hatchets may be cut from blue and red paper and used either single or double. If they are used double, a white cord or ribbon to tie them together will complete the color scheme.

Colored Cakes

A platter of small cakes frosted in red, white or blue, with maraschino cherries on top, will be a bright note on the table.

Flowers can also be readily adapted to the patriotic motif. White flowers in a blue vase or bowl, tied with a red tulle bow, is a striking table decoration providing, of course, the right shade of blue vase is used.

Valentine's Day suggests lace paper, hearts and sentiment, and the hostess should be guided by these suggestions in planning a Valentine party. Heart shaped sandwiches, cookies, cakes and molded gelatin salads, are favorite aids for a Valentine menu.

Candy favor bouquets, which are easily made, are in keeping with Valentine's Day and delightfully decorative for the table. The smaller-around-than-a-dime gumdrops, a little white cellophane or wax paper, a spool of green wire sold at the stores for making flower stems, a few yards of pastel tulle and some three-inch lace paper doilies are required for making the bouquet.

How to Make Bouquets
First wrap the candies individually in small squares of the cellophane or wax paper, twisting it together. Then, after cutting the wire into four inch lengths, stick each flower on a stem. About ten of the flower candies will make a bouquet. Put the stems through one of the paper doilies and tie the doilie around the stem with the tulle. Then straighten out the lace paper frill and you have an old fashioned bouquet.

If the favors are desired for a dinner, boutonnières for the men may be made from clusters of the candies fastened together.

Comical valentines of the old fashioned kind, if they are chosen with an eye to the personality of the recipient, will live up a dinner. Valentines of the frilly kind, which may be either bought or made, may be used for table.

Health Rules For Care
Of Hair Are Listed

Permanent waves and finger waves and short hair have formed a triumvirate these past few years to take women's attention from the care of the hair. Hair nowadays is seldom brushed, is shampooed carelessly, and seldom even thoroughly combed.

A hairdresser commenting on this prevalent negligence of women for their hair placed the blame at the door of waves. Women spend all their time worrying about keeping the wave in, and none of thinking about keeping their hair in condition for waving.

Brushing will not necessarily take out the wave if the brushing is done in the right way. "Don't brush the hair on the top from roots to the ends," she advised. "Start underneath the hair and brush from the roots upward."

Combing the hair thoroughly at least once a day is a necessity she declares, explaining, "The hair must be given some opportunity to get loosened from the scalp, and the scalp must have a chance to get rid of scaling skin and foreign particles."

She approved the use of lemon and vinegar rinses after the shampoo, and when asked which was preferable, stated they were equally good, but that vinegar will do more harm than lemon if the rinse is not followed by a good water rinse.

When asked about hair that has grown dry and brittle, lifeless and colorless, she immediately pronounced oil treatments as the remedy. "Either olive oil or castor oil, heated should be used," she said, "and of the two, castor oil is the harder to wash out." Her method of giving hot oil shampoos was as follows:

Heat the oil until it is warm, then parting the hair along the scalp vigorously rub it over the entire head; after applying the oil, take towels, wrung out in hot water and for perhaps a half hour continue to keep the head wrapped in steaming towels; the head is then ready for a shampoo to be given in the usual way, except that liquid soap should be used by all means be used to facilitate the removal of the oil.

Shampoos on the average of once every two or three weeks, scalp massages often, thorough cleansing of the comb and brush often, were other health and beauty rules she offered for care of the hair.

Hunger Marcher—How far is it to Washington?

1 Room out of 2 Will Serve Dual Purpose
And Give More Space

In houses where the rooms are small and the dining room and living room are divided by a wide doorway, with little effort and expense, the two can be furnished to appear one room and yet serve their dual purpose.

To achieve the best effect, the walls of the two rooms should be papered or stiped alike to promote the illusion of one room. Rugs, of course should be matched as nearly as possible and also the drapes and curtains in the rooms.

A drop leaf dining table lends itself to the appearance of a living room. This table and the chairs should match the other furniture in wood and period. If there is a buffet, it should be a simple, small, and preferably without an attached mirror. A three-cornered built in cupboard will save space.

A comfortable chair or two, a small desk, a small reading table or magazine rack, and the dining table placed with the drop-leaves down, against the wall, a tapestry above it and table bare except for candles make your dining room a part of the living room and will give your two small rooms the appearance of unity and space.

Fashions Forecast Capes

For the Spring Mode

Capes, those picturesque wraps which have been out of the picture for daytime wear during the past several years, are making a bid for a comeback in spring styles if one can believe advance notes on the mode which will be worn around Easter this year.

The suit with the three-quarter length cape of the same material can be accurately forecast as a favorite if capes take hold, for this costume is extremely practical as well as picturesque.

For the Skin

For skins which are too dry and sensitive to allow the use of an astringent, dashing cold water against the face for several moments in the morning and at night will fill the double purpose of stimulating and tightening.

Better for Baby

THE most careful mother cannot strain her baby's first cereal feedings as finely as the commercial canners. A new product, Strained Cereal, has just been put on the market by one of the most prominent canners of strained baby foods, and the strainers used have openings of about one-fourth to one-fifth the area of the holes in the ordinary wire strainer used in the home.

Finely Ground
This cereal mixture of whole wheat, bulled oats and additional wheat germ is finely ground to make it suitable for baby's sensitive digestive tract, and then cooked in whole fresh milk instead of water, and the mixture strained to remove the larger particles of bran. This process means that the nutritive values in the bran or outer layer have been extracted from the entire wheat grain before straining.

For baby's first cereal feedings this Strained Cereal in most cases is of ideal consistency as it comes from the can. Where desirable to feed with the bottle, it can be readily diluted with milk or water. Its smooth, even consistency is maintained with no lumping or other difficulty when liquid is added, and no further cooking is necessary in either case.

No salt or sugar is added in canning this Strained Cereal in order that the mother can season as the baby's doctor directs. The product can just be poured into a sauce pan, warmed to the desired feeding temperature, and salt or sugar added as the doctor advises. Be sure always to feed your baby strictly according to the doctor's directions.

ing Friday

Following the basketball game last Friday night at Fox Lake, the safe at Grant Township High School was broken into and about $100 was stolen.

The loot consisted largely of the receipts from Friday night's basketball game. A small panel of glass broken from a window suggests that a small man or a boy was hoisted through this opening and he in turn released the lock on the window.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Thomas E. Kennedy was notified immediately of the theft Saturday morning. The safe was located in an inner office of the school. The lock on the door to this office was battered off. The desk of C. C. Claxton, principal, was rifled and the contents of the drawers spilled about the room.

The receipts from basketball games in the past have been locked in the safe until the Monday following the game when they are deposited.

Deputy Sheriffs Geno Palmieri and Arthur Greve were sent by Kennedy to investigate the case. A similar theft which occurred at Woodstock was believed to have been executed by the same parties. However, it was discovered Monday that the Woodstock burglary had been committed by a group of local boys.

Fox Lake Woman's Club Plans Music Program For Feb. 2

Young People's League
Visits Libertyville
Group Sunday

A musical program will be given at the next meeting of the Woman's Club, next Thursday, Feb. 2, at 2 o'clock. The program is in charge of the music chairman, Mrs. A. Franzen.

Young people of the Community League of Fox Lake and Ingleside were guests of the Epworth League at Libertyville Methodist Episcopal church, Sunday evening. Twenty members responded to the invitation extended to them to spend the evening and enjoy the program. Supper was served to 96 young folks after which we all saw the picture, "King of Kings".

Mrs. H. L. Scott and Miss Dobriltz drove to Ottawa Saturday where Mrs. Scott visited her daughter.

The Ladies Aid met at the home of Mrs. Wienkio this week where they started on another new quilt. Nineteen members were present.

The mother of Mrs. Cappelletti of Ingleside passed away Tuesday morning after being confined to her bed for many years.

A card party and bake sale with novelty stunts will be given Monday evening at the Recreation hall.

Grant Enters New "Little Five" Group

Athletic Association Girls Initiate Twenty Members

During the past month negotiations have been made for the formation of an athletic conference which will include Marengo, McHenry, Grant, St. Marys, and Hebron. Final plans were drawn up at a meeting held at Hebron on January 25.

According to the present arrangement, Hebron will not participate with the other schools in football, and St. Marys will not participate in any of the tournaments. Membership in the new conference will in no way interfere with the conference affiliations which the various schools have already made. The conference will be known as the Little Five and will begin its activities with the opening of the track season this year.

The girls of the athletic association held their initiation last Monday evening at the high school. The new members had earned the hundred points required for membership by participating in five soccer games. Those who were initiated are Geraldine Hall, Alleen Kappie, Charlotte Daziel, Evelyn Koske, Josephine Stegmaler, Florine Gerrosten, Helen Vandenberg, Dorothy Sebastian, Lucille McDonough, Martha Liljekvist, Marie Crilly, Jean Perry, Sophia Weber, Catherine Martin, Margaret Burleigh, Betty Carver, Mary Maxine Ault, Dorothy Annack, Genevieve Kurtz, and Marjorie Blesster.

The work of planning, cooking, and serving breakfasts is claiming the attention of the members of the domestic science class. This is the final work for the unit on breakfasts. The girls accomplish very satisfactory results through computing the costs of these meals and learning the correct service.

An assembly program was given by the senior class last Friday. This was the first of the assemblies which will be sponsored by the different classes during the remainder of the year. The program consisted of a reading, two musical numbers, and a pantomime entitled "The Duchess Bounces In." A short pep meeting followed the program.

On Monday afternoon the senior class team, composed of boys who are not on the regular basketball squad, met the lightweight team and were defeated 24 to 13. The senior boys did not start working together until the last half when they outscored the lightweight, but the score run up by the lightweight in the first half was too great a lead to be overcome. Jorgensen and Miller starred for the seniors while Amann and Wagner were high point men for the regulars.

Coach Rasinske has arranged to enter the local basketball squad in the county basketball tournament to be held at Libertyville on March 9, 10, and 11. In previous years this tournament has been held in Waukegan.

Crystal Lake defeated Grant in both the first and second team games last Friday evening. The score of the lightweight game was 38 to 4. Young was Crystal Lake's high point man with 13 points to his credit. The heavyweight contest ended in a score of 40 to 28. Nelson, with eleven points, and Rydquist, with nine points, starred for the winners. Watson led the local scoring with four baskets. The games were played on the Grant court.

The Grant cagers split a double header with McHenry Saturday night on the McHenry floor.

The lightweight won the first game by a score of 19 to 13. The game was very exciting and both teams displayed a good fight. Early in the third quarter Grant scored several baskets which gave them a lead they were able to keep during the remainder of the game. Amann and Gerrosten were the high scorers for Grant, while Peterson and Herberda made most of the points for McHenry.

Grant lost the heavyweight contest by a score of 24 to 15. McHenry had gained a 16 to 6 lead at the half, and during the remainder of the game maintained a safe lead.

Mrs. D. A. Williams Composes Verse

The following poem, which carries no title but a good bit of whimsical philosophy, was written in a leisure hour or two one morning recently by Mrs. D. A. Williams, mother of Miss Ruth Williams and Dr. R. D. Williams. Mrs. Williams will be eighty years old this summer, but she has more active interest in life than many people who have three score less years to their credit.

The farmer hopes "that it will rain,"
The tourist hopes 'twill not.
The coalman hopes "it will turn cold,"

The ice man hopes "it's hot."
The richman grieves o'er income tax,

Can scarcely sleep at all,
The poor man at his outgo backs,
He's sure the Heavens must fall.

The "Reader" hands you out a book
When'er he finds you ill.
The Doctor says, "Get a good cook,
Or else go take a pill."

The schoolboy says, "I'm nearly starved,
Just anything to eat."

The old man says, "I ate too much,
Can hardly use my feet."
Some people just say, "Wear more clothes
And keep your body warm."

But others say, "The sun and air
Can never do you harm."
Some people say, "Drink water,
It's the only thing to do."

While others say, "A whiskey sling
Just cured me of the flu."
Some people say, "Improve your mind,
The higher branches learn."

While some with health and brains
Endowed
Would every school book burn.
Some people think a happy smile
May help to calm your woes
And certainly can do no harm
To either friends or foes.

While others think, "Just Scandalous!
No dignity at all."
And they would call the firing squad
And back you to the wall.
No providence could please them all
And so He doesn't try
Because some people want to walk
While others want to fly.

But people of good sense I know
Whether they laugh or cry
From this old world don't want to go,
They'd rather live than die.

So we quote:
"T'would be a sorrier world
More full of cares
If God should answer
Everybody's prayers."
